

Recalling facts

Name: _____

Date: _____

Circle the letter of the word or words that completes each statement correctly.

- Elevation is measured from
a. contours. b. sea level. c. mountain peaks.
- A region that is based on the languages that people speak is a
a. culture region. b. political region. c. functional region.
- A graph that shows both temperature and rainfall is called a
a. line graph. b. circle graph. c. climograph
- Countries with little use of technology and low levels of industrialization are called
a. developing countries. b. culture regions. c. developed countries.
- The amount of elevation between contour lines on a contour map is called the
a. contour measure. b. contour interval. c. interval measure.
- Part of a large body of water that extends into a shoreline is called
a. a bay. b. an isthmus. c. a delta.
- Culture regions are based on
a. many elements. b. one element. c. physical features.
- Another word for rainfall is
a. temperature. b. humidity. c. precipitation.
- A climograph is two types of graphs put together. These two types of graphs are a line graph and a
a. population pyramid. b. circle graph. c. bar graph.
- A narrow stretch of land that connects two larger land areas is
a. a peninsula. b. an isthmus. c. a cape.
- Regions that are based on people's feelings and attitudes are called regions.
a. perceptual b. formal c. functional
- The type of economic system in which businesses are owned by the people is called
a. socialism. b. industrialization. c. free enterprise